

 Connection doesn't come with terms — only open doors.

Before you dive into the quiz...

A quick heart-to-heart

*The quiz you've downloaded?
Some might call it a "lead magnet"
— a free gift in exchange for your email.*

But there is a difference

You didn't have to trade your inbox for this moment.

Because at Super Power Family, we believe that real connection shouldn't come with requirements.

Instead of chasing quick clicks, we're here to build a long-term story — with you.

Slowly, meaningfully, the way all the best things grow.

- ★ Or just tuck this quiz into your heart and wander a little first.

Our hope?

A long, steady friendship — the kind that gets messy, magical, and strong.

Maybe that's idealistic.

But honestly? We think families — and communities — are worth idealism.

Enjoy the quiz — and the beautiful becoming it sparks.

The Soulful Quintuple Question Quiz: What Kind of Family Are We Becoming

Instructions:

Bring your family and agree on the answer that feels most true for your family right now — not forever, not overthinking! (And if two call your name? Trust your gut.)

On a slow Saturday morning, our vibe is most like:

- A. Exploring somewhere new — even if it's just the corner park.
- B. Building, making, or inventing something from what we have.
- C. Hanging out, being silly, telling stories half in our pajamas.
- D. Doing something kind for someone else — a call, a card, a cookie drop.

When life throws a curveball (like spilled cereal or missed alarms), we usually:

- A. Grab shoes and head outside to shake it off.
- B. Rework the plan and build something better.
- C. Laugh, roll our eyes, and hug it out eventually.
- D. Rally together — "We've got this, all of us."

When one of us needs cheering up, the first instinct is to:

- A. Go on a mini-adventure (even a sidewalk walk counts).
- B. Create something (a card, a fort, a pancake tower).
- C. Tell a joke, a story, or make a goofy face.
- D. Make space — listen, hug, sit close.

Our family's "secret sauce" feels most like:

- A. Curiosity and wonder — we always want to see what's around the next corner.
- B. Creativity and teamwork — we're better together, building big dreams.
- C. Humor and lightness — we know how to lift each other up.
- D. Heart and roots — we care deeply, and it shows.

Looking ahead, what matters most to us is raising a family that:

- A. Seeks out new experiences and grows from them.
- B. Faces challenges by working together creatively.
- C. Can find joy even when things get messy.
- D. Knows how to love fiercely, gently, and well.

The Soulful Quintuple Question Quiz: What Kind of Family Are We Becoming

Reflective Break:

 Take a moment before you peek at your results.

Which answers felt easy, like a second skin?

Which ones made you pause — or even long for something more?

There's no "perfect" way to be a family.

Mainly noticing.

And noticing? That's actually where new stories begin.
